ENTR 1100 3 credits

Entrepreneurial Inquiry

Entrepreneurial leaders are problem solvers, passionate about what they do. They inspire others to unite in this passion and create ways to collectively realize meaningful change. Becoming such a leader starts with understanding your entrepreneurial passion. In this course, students will explore their skills, motivators and interests as they relate to entrepreneurial thinking, in order to define their entrepreneurial identity. They will establish their entrepreneurial context through identification and investigation of their entrepreneurial areas of interest and world view.

Digital Strategy for Entrepreneurs

Building community and promoting an online presence serves an important role in communicating the entrepreneurial self. A digital strategy for entrepreneurs and professional leaders supports how and where we express to our community who we are, what we value, and where our ideas will take us. In this course, students will explore the different ways to create and promote community and convey their values using a digital strategy framework. By employing online tools, students will also practice with metrics collecting and interpreting data in order to develop data literacy skills through data storytelling.

Values, Rationality, and Power: Developing Wise Organizational Action

Students will learn the inner political nature of organizations and begin developing skills to become wise agents of action. This course will focus on three elements required to get things done in an organization; values, rationality, and power. Students will learn how these attributes impact people's ability to achieve goals and how, though they may lead to conflict, they are the means to build supportive alliances. This course will teach actionable strategies students may apply to manage these political dynamics to drive wise organizational action.

Level: UG

Prerequisite(s): 30 credits from courses at the 1100 level or higher, including ENGL 1100.

Persuasion and Influence

Persuasion and influence are central to understanding roles and responsibilities of entrepreneurs and professional leaders. These concepts are used in building community, communicating information, as well as establishing and growing trust. To understand persuasion and influence, a leader must first examine attitudes held towards people, issues, businesses, and brands. In this course students will explore the meaning and significance of attitudes in order to identify and design strategies for persuading, influencing, and engaging specific target audiences. Students will also study different models of persuasion and influence and reflect on how these concepts are grounded in community and relationships.
